JOHN J. REESE, Secretary.

The "MEDICAL INSTITUTE OF PHILADELPHIA," founded in 1817, owes its origin to the Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in the University of Pennsylvania; and for a period of nearly thirty years it has occupied an important position among the medical institutions of this city; being in fact the oldest among them, with the exception of the University.

The object of Dr. Chapman in founding the Institute, was primarily to benefit his large class of office students during the interval between the Winter Sessions, by giving them a combined course of medical instruction. For this purpose, associations were formed, at different periods, with Drs. Horner, Gibson, T. Harris, Mitchell, Dewees, Jackson, Hodge, Bell, and many others, gentlemen who have long occupied distinguished public situations, and whose names are widely known to the medical profession.

The design of the INSTITUTE differs materially from that of the Winter Schools, with which it has no connection whatever. It confers no degree or diploma, but is intended to afford such a course of practical and demonstrative instruction as is particularly needed by those students who remain in the city, either for the whole period of their study, or during any single interval between the Winter Lectures.

By extending the Course over a much longer period of time than is allotted to the Winter Courses, and by giving but two or three lectures each day, the arrangement is well calculated to insure to the student all the advantages of office instruction, which is so necessary to a correct medical education, and which is unavoidably interfered with during the Winter months.

Such a system of instruction, embracing as it does the purely demonstrative and practical branches, recommends itself especially to those students who are not satisfied merely with an attendance upon the Winter lectures, but who are also desirous of continuing their studies during the Summer.

In accordance with this plan, the Corporators have so arranged the Course, that four branches, viz., Anatomy, Materia Medica, Obstetrics, and Chemistry, will be taught by special demonstrations,—two lectures upon each being given during the week; whilst the two practical branches of Medicine and Surgery will be taught by Clinical Instruction, given daily, by the physicians and surgeons of the Pennsylvania Hospital.

By these means, the student has the opportunity of acquiring the elementary branches of medicine, and, at the same time, of constantly studying disease as exhibited at the bedside, in the wards of the only Institution where bonâ fide clinical instruction is afforded. This latter desideratum the student is to a great extent, at least, deprived of during the Winter months, in consequence of his limited time, the numerous lectures which he must attend, and the crowds who resort to the Hospital at that period.

Each branch is illustrated by the most approved apparatus, specimens, and drawings:—ANATOMY, by the fresh subject, models, and preparations; MATERIA MEDICA, by specimens of the various drugs and medicines as presented both to the dealer and physician, together with paintings of the medicinal plants, and specimens in the growing state. OBSTETRICS—by the manikin, wet preparations, and drawings. CHEMISTRY—by the large and well furnished laboratory of the Department of Arts in the University of Pennsylvania.

The course of instruction will commence early in April, and be continued till the end of October, with the usual vacation of six weeks, during the Summer.

The expenses of such a course are so moderate, that a part, or the whole, may be within the reach of almost every student remaining in the city, as will be seen from the following
